SketchUp 2.5 Extension: Bezier Curves, HOW TO: Bezier Curves fromÂ .I'm a big believer that the best way to make any kind of comparison between two NBA teams is to look at the three-point shooting percentages. We've got four teams that are pretty close to each other in the total number of made threes (all are within 50 made threes). Memphis has the highest number, Chicago has the lowest and then the Bucks and Heat are pretty close. Then, Milwaukee has the highest percentage of made threes, followed by Miami, then Chicago and then Memphis. My point being, is that if you're looking for a "best" team, there's no one team that is the best at making threes. When you look at the numbers, it's pretty clear that the 2014-15 Milwaukee Bucks are a great offensive team. But can they defend? So far this season, the Bucks have shot 38.6 percent from behind the arc. That's good for ninth-best in the NBA. One of the reasons Milwaukee is so good from 3-point range is because they're seventh-best in the NBA in two-point percentage. So, while they're getting it done on the outside, they're not letting the opposing teams get to the rim. The Heat are the only team that's been able to get to the rim more than the Bucks this year. So, while the Bucks are doing so well on the three-point line this year, can they actually stop shooting threes? Let's look at the key numbers. Chicago Bulls vs. Milwaukee Bucks In the 2014-15 season, Chicago has the highest opponent 2-pt pct., making 47.3 percent of their attempts. If we take away Chicago' 648931e174
