F-Welchi is a small removal utility that will rapidly disinfect systems infected with the Welch worm. Usage: □ Unpack the F-Welchi utility from the provided ZIP archive □ Run the unpacked F-Welchi.exe file from a hard disk to eliminate the Welch worm infection. You can run the utility by either double clicking on it from Windows Explorer or you can start it from a command interpreter (COMMAND.COM or CMD.EXE) by typing its name at command prompt and pressing 'Enter' (for advanced users). First the F-Welchi utility will kill Welch worm's process in memory. Then the utility will remove the registry values and the additional worm copies from the startup folders. □ Reboot the system. After restart your system should be clean. If you have F-Secure Anti-Virus installed, the utility will temporarily disable on-access scanner to be able to disinfect your system. After the utility completes disinfection, it enables on-access scanner. If a computer with Windows NT, 2000 or XP operating system is being disinfected, please log in as Administrator or as a user with local admin rights, otherwise the F-Welchi utility might not disinfect the system correctly. If you have Windows ME or XP, it is recommended to disable System Restore feature of these operating systems to prevent your computer from re-infection with Welchi worm. Scareware Information: Welchi is a scammer program that pretends to be a real antivirus program. It claims to identify and prevent malware, but does not do so. The program does not provide any kind of real-time protection or antivirus scanning. Welchi is downloaded onto a user's computer through search engines, spam emails, freeware installers, dubious websites and fake pop-ups. The installer may also be disguised as a real antivirus program. Welchi has been classified as a worm because it downloads itself to the computer when the user is infected by it. There is no way to remove Welchi manually, it must be removed by a tool that is designed specifically to remove the threat. Welchi appears as a real antivirus program but in fact it has been specifically designed to generate advertising revenue for its developers. It also carries out a ransom when it infects a computer.
